This original documentary focuses on a group of kids who have built a community around a love of music and a passion for creating an alternative to dominant consumerist society. By putting on shows in basements, booking and traveling on national tours, and releasing their own records, these kids attempt to distance themselves from the corporate influence that they consider not only unnecessary, but unwelcome.

This fascinating look into the workings of a DIY punk community also examines the scene's shortcomings, such as undercurrents of sexism as well as the problem of self sufficiency, which pressures some to seek out the same corporate avenues to which the scene strives to be an alternative. Features live footage and interviews with Latterman, On the Might of Princes, The Insurgent, Seven Days of Samsara, plus show-goers, scenesters, zinesters, and activists.

Includes deleted scenes, extra live footage, and follow up segments on Latterman, scene members, and women in punk.

"A fabulous example of the fight many of us are waging." -- Clamour Magazine

"Between Resistance and Community ... pays tribute to the Long Island do-it-yourself punk scene, where dediantly unfamous bands play in basements and parking lots ... They are bright, articulate and self-critical, holding onto their anarchist anticorporate princibles with a dogmantic idealism." -- The New York Times

"Between provides a timely snapshot of contemporary punk's new sincerity. Like its subjects, the documentary rebels against cynical consumer capitalism by embracing a warm Fugazite humanism." -- The Village Voice
