A perfect primer for people who want to become more sustainable

Make Your Place (2nd Edition)
Affordable, Sustainable Nesting Skills

By Raleigh Briggs

Praise for previous edition:

Raleigh Briggs’ book-length collection of zines, Make Your Place is a perfect primer for anyone looking to live cheaper and toxin-free. Briggs teaches us how to craft a sustainable domestic life outside of consumer consciousness. Says Briggs, “In the past few decades, lots of DIY-minded folks have been tuned in to things like crafting and self-publishing, but there hasn’t been quite as much noise about what could be called the everyday DIY--the things you need to do to keep your home in order, to keep yourself fed and clean and healthy. I wanted to show my readers that there is as much room for creativity in these pursuits as there is in our artistic endeavors.” This hand-drawn book of charming tutorials is both fun and accessible. It’s full of simple skills that anyone can and should learn. From creating tinctures and salves, to concocting all-natural cleaners, to gardening basics, Make Your Place is great for anyone looking to live more simply and truly do it themselves.
