

UNSINKABLE: How to Build Plywood Pontoons & Longtail Boat Motors Out of Scrap by ROBNOXIOUS SUTTER

Praise for Robnoxious:

"The warmest, most endearing, most honest presentation." —Rocktober

"It's about enjoying life's journey. There's a lot of content here for a reasonable price and a beautiful full color cover. There are emotive expressions, plenty of caricature, and Robnoxious lights up most of the panels with motion lines and lively touches like inanimate objects taking on life. —Poopsheet Foundation

"Took me by surprise, delivering a warm, charming narrative that stayed with me for days afterward." —Matt Fagan

Ostensibly the first and only book by, for, and about amateur boat builders sharing their knowledge, adventures, and skills.

There's nothing like a good adventure story! Pair that with a how-to manual and you've got gold. Robnoxious' new book, Unsinkable: How to build Plywood Pontoons & Longtail Motor Boats Out of Scrap, is both the story of his trip down the Missouri River on a homemade boat and how to do so yourself! Here the author of Shut Up and Love the Rain, Awesome Future, and The Strange Voyage of the Leona Joyce brings a little slice of Huck Finn to 2012 as he and friends take to the Big Muddy in their unsinkable, ever-ready craft The Snowball. Watch as Rob and Co. encounter wild rednecks and Lord of the Flies-esque river islands, sublime sunsets and deathly storms. It's an exciting rollercoaster of a ride but Rob's front-of-book schematics make it seem totally possible for the lay person. Rob's adventure story/DIY guide combo-punch brings a lot to the table and you'll be carting this tome around 'til it and you are waterlogged and sunbaked!
